

M&R associates design, the Switzerland based interior/exterior aerospace design and project management company, is continuing its rapid expansion, developing more high end in-house capabilities and offering its experience, services and creativity to their worldwide customers.

With its headquarters in Geneva, and offices in Basel, M&R also opened another office in Paris two years ago. Due to their strong business development over the past few years, M&R is also planning to open an office in Asia and/or Middle East.

Vincent Rey, Florent Magnin and André Nillès, the three owners of M&R associates design bring a total of over 60 years of aerospace experience achieved in VVIP interior/exterior design, project management and marketing. This unique complementary expertise within the management team allows the design company to focus ninety five percent of its revenues towards business aviation, either business jets or helicopters.

UNIQUE EXPERIENCE

"M&R's major strength in design and project management is the obvious result of the experience of our directors and employees," says designer Vincent Rey. "We've all worked previously in the Design departments of several aircraft manufacturers, and also in major Completion Centers worldwide before joining M&R. It makes our design company truly unique in its technical knowledge and experience in integration when working with either manufacturers or major completion centers, delivering the finest design/engineering packages ready for completion".

M&R's current portfolio includes projects developed for worldwide customers on basically every aircraft type for both new and/or refurbished aircraft.

"M&R is one of the very few worldwide aerospace design companies officially referenced by both Airbus and Boeing. This brings our customers maximum comfort and credibility when it comes to designing together with the owner his new or pre-owned aircraft, regardless of its size, and with the highest and latest standards available in the VVIP Industry," adds André Nillès. Today, M&R associates design enjoys a large customer base worldwide with references in Europe, Middle East, Africa, North America and Asia, either for VVIP owners, governments, or major organizations.

ADVANCED MATERIAL SUPPLIERS

Since its creation, M&R associates design's team has always been focused on maximum creativity. The design team claims that it is not trying to impose their own special style or branding to their customers, but instead carefully listens to each of the owner's specific wishes before turning every single project into a unique approach towards excellence.

The team is currently selecting and working with an exclusive network of advanced material suppliers/partners, developing together with them joint processes that take into account the challenging combination of elegance, latest certification requirements, but also the easiest maintainability which is so important to VVIP aircraft.

IN-HOUSE CAPABILITIES

"Regarding technology and IT systems, M&R has outstanding in-house capability of computer

"Raising your project to excellence is our motto" model making of all aircraft cabin. Our 3D renderings realizations reflect exactly all smallest and finest details of the future cabin of the Owner in true HD photo realistic electronic images. It also enables our customers to navigate freely within their cabin through their Ipad or HD video with extreme quality and precision," explains Florent Magnin. M&R associates design recently delivered a VVIP Boeing B757-200. They are currently completing a new Gulfstream G650, and were recently awarded another contract on a brand new full VVIP Airbus A330-200. ■

